Supporting Women to Tell Their Stories

The Need: Tech donations for grassroots storytelling

As climatic vulnerabilities increase and the pressures of market forces grow, it is particularly critical that women leaders and entrepreneurs are equipped to raise their voices and share the inextricably connected narrative of women and environment.

As part of WEA's training model, women participants gain skills in multimedia and storytelling so they can design and share their own narratives of seed and food sovereignty, clean energy entrepreneurship, water protection, and countless others. Participants learn how to use cameras, recording devices, and laptops, as well as techniques for effective storytelling and dissemination.

Technology for Storytelling: What we're looking for

All donations will be put to great use by WEA partners around the world.

Cameras:

- Digital cameras with necessary accessories (especially batteries).

Recording devices:

- Smartphones with working photo/audio/video recording. They do not need to be unlocked for international SIM card use, as they won't be used as phones. However, they do need to be passcode unlocked.
- iPod Touch with working photo/audio/video recording.
- Digital audio or video recorders.

Laptops

- Any laptop model from 2009 or later.

PLEASE NOTE: Our women partners will not be able to use anything that needs repair, like a severely cracked screen or a battery that won't hold a charge. Please wipe all the devices of personal information and make sure nothing is password protected.
